

Mushroom Plant Asks 5-Year Lease On Old Quarries

Common Council Sets February 27 as Date for Necessary Public Auction to Grant Lease; Tax Bill Read

Donnarumma Would Have City Ask for State Aid on Sewage; No Action Taken

That Knaust Brothers, Inc., who recently purchased properties in Saugerties, Catskill and Hudson, are planning to improve their mushroom growing plant in Kingston, was brought to the attention of the common council Tuesday evening when the concern sought to obtain a five-year lease on the old abandoned quarries of the Newark Lime & Cement Company, now owned by the city.

An ordinance to lease the real estate at public auction to be held in the office of the city clerk on February 27, was unanimously adopted by the council. In order for the council to grant a lease of city property under the city charter it is necessary to offer the lease at public auction.

The old cement quarries have been leased on a yearly basis for a number of years by Knaust Brothers, Inc., and have been used for growing mushrooms.

Attorney George F. Kaufman, representing the concern, sent a communication to the council stating that Knaust Brothers were planning many improvements to the property but before they went ahead with their plans they desired to lease the property for a five-year period with the privilege of renewing it for another five years.

On the recommendation of the corporation counsel the auditing committee reported favorably on settling the claim of Frank Hornbeck for $15 damages to his car in running over a manhole on West Pierpont street. The report was approved by the council.

To Aid Taxpayers

For several years the council has yearly adopted an ordinance permitting delinquent taxpayers to pay delinquent taxes on the installment plan. Last night a local law to that effect was introduced and had its first reading.

Lease Approved

The council also approved the lease the city had made of the Jewish Community Center on lower Broadway at a monthly rental of $25, the building to be used to house the activities of the local National Youth Administration.

Would Ask State Aid

Alderman Donnarumma introduced a resolution to the effect that the council go on record in requesting the senator and assemblyman from this district to seek financial aid from the state in defraying the cost of the proposed sewage plant in Kingston.

Speaking on the resolution the alderman from the Sixth ward said that legislation had been introduced in Albany to defer action until 1941, but he believed that the council should take action now to have state aid if possible, for if the legislation was adopted the city was on the spot and would have to erect the proposed plant five years hence.

Aldermen Zucca and Tremper in opposing the resolution stated that it was an inopportune time to take action such as proposed as the main object now was in trying to get the state department order deferred for at least five years.

President Schweik said he saw no reason for taking action such as proposed at the present time. The council then adjourned without taking action on the resolution.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, Feb. 8 (AP)—The position of the Treasury, February 6: Receipts, $73,472,227.30; expenditures, $48,443,304.03; net balance $25,028,923.27, including $2,475,496,676.76 working balance; customs receipts for the month $3,056,394.41. Receipts for the fiscal year (since January 1), $2,419,695,277.33; expenditures, $2,444,881,758.83, including $1,822,784,069.30 of emergency expenditures; excess of expenditures $2,025,186,231.55; gross debt $2,110,105,793.41, an increase of $14,361,910.64 above the previous day; gold assets $14,710,969,095.59.

Mrs. Cramer Improves At Suffern Hospital

The condition of Mrs. Konrad Cramer, an artist, of Woodstock, N. Y., who was injured in an automobile accident with her husband near Suffern Saturday, was described by Suffern Hospital as attaches today as "improved but still critical."

Mrs. Cramer suffered concussion of the brain. Her husband was declared in good condition, according to the Associated Press.

Forbes Given 30 Days

Edward Forbes of Phoenix, arrested Sunday by Trooper Dunn on a public intoxication charge, was given 30 days in the Ulster county jail when arraigned last night before Justice W. C. Weyman.

Saves Pal, Loses Supper

Because Eugene Watson (left), 11, had spent his time saving his pal, William Butcher (right), 12, from icy waters of the Schuylkill river near Philadelphia, he went to bed without his supper. Punishment was imposed by Eugene's mother because he came home late and refused to say why. He and a companion crawled out over thin ice to save their pal.

Relief Costs $13,000 For $2,200 Officer

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 8 (AP)—Richard Clarke, an Erie county welfare department spokesman last night asserted public welfare agencies have spent more than $13,000 supporting the family of Franklin Strahan, a Buffalo policeman who has a salary of $2,200 a year.

Clarke said the policeman had been taken into court six times since 1930 on charges of non-support and neglecting his family of ten and the sixth time his children had been ordered into the care of the welfare department which has supported them for about 10 years.

19 Firemen File Claims at Woburn; 'Jump,' Says Kane

Fireladders Ask $400 Each in Back Pay, but, Says Mayor, 'Some of These Men Are Overweight'

Woburn, Mass., Feb. 8 (AP)—Nineteen firemen filed suits against the city, claiming $400 each in back pay and Mayor William E. Kane's answer today was an order for physical and mental examinations for every member of the department.

Not only must physicians test the "heart, blood pressure, nerves and equilibrium" of every man, but Kane insisted that each climb a 165-foot water tower and jump from the roof of a downtown building to prove he knew how to use a life net.

"I'm sure some of these men are overweight from sleeping in the firehouses," said the mayor, "maybe this will help them reduce."

The order also applied to Kane's brother, Fire Chief Michael J. Kane, who was the only man in the department who did not file a suit.

Terminating the job of firemen "the only work I know of where a man is working while sleeping," Mayor Kane later ordered all beds removed from Woburn's fire stations. It was the latest action by the fiery former marine, whose economy program recently led him to order street lights extinguished on moonlight nights.

The firemen work in two platoons, each platoon being on duty 12 hours each day.

"A watchman has to stay awake all night," said Kane, who gained attention by his futile effort to have Woburn's "drunks" paraded in a lion's cage. "A soldier or a sailor, is shot, and only gets a dollar a day, but firemen, getting $42 a week, go on the job at night, tumble into a nice warm bed between clean sheets bought by and laundered at the expense of the city, and go to work."

Longshoreman Held

New York, Feb. 8 (AP)—A 29-year-old longshoreman and convict was held today in the drab slaying of Charmaine Edwards, 47, recently on relief but once a concert pianist. James Powers was booked on a homicide charge after police found the body of the woman, strangled to death and beaten, in a tenement hallway yesterday. Detectives said that Powers admitted having an argument with her while she was drinking. They said two teeth knocked from the slain woman's mouth had been found in his apartment. Neighbors said Miss Edwards often showed press clippings of the days when she had toured the country as a successful musical artist.

Paul Is Indicted

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 8 (AP)—The United States attorney's office reported today indictment of Rene Paul, 41, formerly of Paterson, on a charge of attempted extortion in the kidnapping of Peter Levine, 12-year-old New Rochelle schoolboy.

Legislative Group To Ask Extension For Better Survey

Unemployment Insurance Inquiry Will Yield Preliminary Report on March 15, C. O. Burney Says

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 8 (AP)—How much the 1939 Legislature can accomplish toward improving administration of the unemployment insurance law aroused speculation today as completion of an inquiry of the law's operation by March 15 appeared virtually impossible.

"We will probably ask for an extension of time," said Republican Assemblyman Charles O. Burney, chairman of the legislative investigating committee, "but we will make at least a preliminary report on March 15."

He asserted, however, that the first report "definitely will carry recommendations" for correcting alleged weaknesses in unemployment insurance. Republicans, including the party's gubernatorial candidate, Thomas E. Dewey, have attributed "extensive human misery" to delays in payments of insurance benefits.

The probability of the investigation's extension beyond the deadline set by the legislature arose amid these other developments.

The scheduled re-election, in a joint session of Senate and Assembly, of William Leland Thompson, of Troy, to the state board of regents for a 12-year term.

Announcement of a public hearing, March 1, on all bills before the legislature providing for state loans to help localities finance slum clearance and low-cost housing projects.

Legislative leaders have indicated a desire for final adjournment by April 1, or soon thereafter. Should they hold to that schedule, the lawmakers would have but little time, in the final rush of legislation, to study and act upon recommendations which the unemployment insurance investigating committee would submit March 15. Any other findings of the committee in an extension of the probe, it is expected, probably would go over for action by the 1940 legislature.

The committee in turn, with the investigation not yet fully underway and hearings not scheduled to start for another week, will have only a month to hear and study state-wide testimony on the insurance law's operation. Meantime Burney said he and other members of the committee had received "a flood of new complaints" against the law's administration. Asserting that no definite dates had been set to replace the tentative program of public hearings abandoned last week, he said: "So many people have communicated their desire to appear at the hearing and register complaints, it looks as if we will have to broaden the territory we had intended to take in with hearings."

Kentuckians Get Health Serums; May Angry at WPA

Vaccine for 250,000 Persons Arrives for Stricken Counties; Flood Crest in Ohio Valley Rushes South

Marye Answers

Divisional WPA Director Says Agency Workers Are Doing Many Good Things

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 8 (AP)—Health authorities today immunized thousands of eastern Kentucky mountain people against pneumonia, influenza and typhoid—more feared than the overflowing streams which swept the hill country and flooded lowlands.

As rehabilitation progressed and the crest of the Ohio river slowly moved toward the Mississippi, the Works Progress Administration was criticized by Representative May (D.-Ky.) for its "indefensible refusal to cooperate" in aiding flood sufferers.

E. A. Marye, divisional WPA director here, said, however, that the agency's workers were assisting in evacuation of refugees, "cleaning polluted wells and cisterns and aiding in the repair of utilities, bridges and water lines."

Vaccine for 250,000 persons was rushed into the 30 flood-stricken mountain counties yesterday by Red Cross and Kentucky Health Department authorities.

The Ohio dropped at Huntington, W. Va., and Cincinnati and rose slightly here and at downriver points in Kentucky and Indiana. Scores were driven from their southern Indiana homes.

At Huntington the river was at 43 feet early today and dropping .25 feet an hour. The stage at Cincinnati was 58.25 feet and was falling at the rate of .01 foot an hour. At midnight the Ohio stood at 33.8 feet here and was rising .1 foot every two hours, exact.

By half as fast as it has risen for three or four days. The same situation was true at Owensboro, where the water stood at 42.4 feet. The Huntington flood stage is 50 feet. Cincinnati's is 52 feet, Louisville's 23 and Owensboro's 41.

The Kentucky, Licking and Cumberland rivers were almost normal in eastern Kentucky, but muddy, slimy roads made certain parts of the section inaccessible.

Rep. May said in Washington he had "made every effort to induce the WPA to cut their red tape so that relief could be given the people whose homes have been swept by this flood, but Washington officials are standing on the orders of the federal director and refusing to let their forces enter private property without the permission of the owners." "The people in the flood areas are begging for aid," May declared.

Cummings Dies At Indianapolis

Race Driver Succumbs to Fractured Skull Sustained in Skidding Accident

Indianapolis, Feb. 8 (AP)—William C. (Wild Bill) Cummings, 32, whose daring prowess was well known on automobile race tracks from coast to coast, died today of injuries suffered Monday night when his automobile skidded from a highway at the approach of a bridge, hurled 50 feet across a creek and landed in the water 15 feet below the highway.

His skull was fractured. An operation was performed yesterday but the race driver, winner of the 500-mile classic at the Indianapolis motor speedway in 1934, died without regaining consciousness. He is survived by the widow, Mrs. Leota Cummings, and a 10-year-old daughter, Earlene.

Glass Will Reply

Washington, Feb. 8 (AP)—Senator Glass (D.-Va.) drafted a sharp reply today to a presidential letter criticizing Senate rejection of Floyd H. Roberts for a federal judgeship in Virginia. Friends said Glass was incensed over the letter, which Mr. Roosevelt wrote Roberts yesterday. It termed statements of Glass untruthful and declared the constitution does not give veto power to one or two senators.

House Defeats GOP Attempt To Cripple NLRB; Nye Prepares Bill to Retain Plane Secrets

Spanish Guns Stacked Away in France

Here is a big collection of rifles once carried by Spanish government forces in Catalonia, abandoned at the French border town of Le Perthus when the defeated loyalists fled into French territory. At one time as many as 6,000 Loyalists an hour were reported crossing the border. Here French soldiers pile up the abandoned arms. Photo by radio from London to New York.

British Cruiser Is at Minorca; Hope for Peace in Spain Fades

Arrival of Anglo Cruiser Lends Credence to Belief Britain and France Fear Italian or German Occupation

(By The Associated Press)

A British warship anchored off the strategic Spanish island of Minorca in the eastern Mediterranean today as hopes for immediate peace in the Spanish civil war faded and Britain considered measures to checkmate Italian and German influence in Spain.

British officials acknowledged a truce had been proposed to insurgent Generalissimo Franco but if any reply was received it remained secret.

Arrival of the cruiser Devonshire at Minorca gave substance to reports of British and French fears for their empire life-lines through the possibility of Italian or German troops occupying the island, only one of the Balearics still in Spanish government hands.

London reports said the cabinet was contemplating a large loan to France to counter-balance any foothold gained by the totalitarian powers in Spain through military support they gave Franco during the 20-month war.

Premier Juan Negrin's government reiterated its refusal of insurgent demands for unconditional surrender.

Unexpected fighting broke out between insurgents and retreating government troops near Puigcerda on the French frontier with warplanes and artillery units joining the battle.

The flow of government troops and refugees continued across the border into France, however. Government hopes were pinned on being able to force the fighters to the Madrid-Valencia zone, where General Jose Miaja has said the government would keep up the fight in the one-quarter of Spain it still controls.

A Nazi plan that Jews be allowed to return to Spain was also reported.

Representative Taber Pleads That Funds for NLRB Be Withheld Until Relations Law Is Changed

No Demonstrations

Nye's Bill Would Forbid Showing Foreign Powers New Developments

Washington, Feb. 8 (AP)—The House overwhelmingly defeated a Republican attempt today to cripple the National Labor Relations Board by eliminating its $3,069,000 appropriation for the next fiscal year.

The standing vote, announced as 186 to 5, came after House Majority Leader Rayburn had taken the floor and appealed to the membership not to "assassinate" the board in such a manner.

Rep. Taber (R.-N. Y.), senior minority member of the House appropriation committee, led the fight to strike out the item with a declaration that the funds should be withheld until the labor relations law can be amended so both industry and labor would be assured a "square deal."

The New Yorker said the situation was comparable to that of the Federal Communications Commission for which the committee refused to recommend further funds until the reorganization requested by President Roosevelt could be accomplished.

Senator Nye (R.-Ind.) disclosed today he was preparing legislation to keep for the United States alone the military secrets involved in producing and equipping war planes by private manufacturers.

Nye said his bill would follow the general outlines of a regulation issued last August by Louis Johnson, assistant secretary of war, and Admiral William D. Leahy, imposing secrecy on the production of any aircraft in which the army or navy had an interest.

That regulation forbade demonstration of planes to foreign representatives before the army had put them into use and had released them for general sale. It was obviated in the recent case of a French mission, through an order some senators have asserted was sponsored by President Roosevelt.

Nye's proposal followed disclosure by Mr. Roosevelt that this country is permitting the sale of outmoded anti-aircraft gun directors to Great Britain, but has declined to allow a new improvement perfected by the army to be included.

Other developments in Congress: Secretary of Labor Perkins appeared before the House judiciary committee to declare that charges against her in an impeachment resolution were unfounded.

Secretary of State Hull and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace met with southern Senators who are seeking a way to market the huge surplus of American cotton.

William M. McNamara of Cambridge, Mass., told the House ways and means committee the "townsend pension plan had 'more real essence' for wide social and economic advancement than any bill ever presented to Congress."

Thomas R. Amble told a Senate committee investigating his fitness for interstate commerce commissioner, that he addressed the Congress against War and Fascism in Chicago in 1934 where he may have been introduced as "Comrade Amble," but he denied he was a member of either the Communist or Socialist parties.

The President's request for another $150,000,000 for relief brought congressional demands for a careful scrutiny of relief needs.

Many legislators expressed willingness to vote for additional funds if the necessity was demonstrated, but there were indications that neither Senate nor House would act quickly or without extensive inquiry.

The President's request was sent to Capitol Hill yesterday—three days after he had signed the $725,000,000 relief measure approved last week.

That bill carried $150,000,000 less than Mr. Roosevelt had requested to operate the WPA until June 30. It provided that not more than 150,000 of the present 3,000,000 WPA workers could be dismissed during February and March, and it authorized the President to ask a supplemental appropriation in event of an emergency.

Uttering the emergency provision, Mr. Roosevelt declared that unless further money is appropriated, WPA rolls will undergo "a very drastic reduction" April 1.

Galveston, Tex., Feb. 8 (AP)—The Badgett girls, one week old today, have graduated to bottles. Nurses said the quadruplets apparently enjoyed their new style meals. Previously they have been fed from eye droppers.

Brisk Business Features Opening of Dollar Days

Ideal weather this morning greeted the opening day of Kingston's annual February Dollar Day Sale which will be continued Thursday.

Shoppers were out early and some of the stores which were offering limited "bargains" of unusual merit were swamped with early shoppers. Other stores during the morning continued to do a good business.

The majority of Kingston merchants were offering special Dollar Day items for both today and Thursday. Those who cannot visit the stores today during regular shopping hours will find the same sale prices prevailing Thursday.

Oppenheimer Says Verdicts for $1,875 He Doesn't Desire To Be BPW Chief Of County Crash

Acting Superintendent Would Prefer to Be Assistant, So Board Will Have New Appointment to Make

It is expected that the board of public works at its regular meeting next week will appoint a superintendent to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Roland Green, earlier in the year. It is said there are several candidates for the position.

Max Oppenheimer, assistant superintendent of the board, who has been serving as acting superintendent, is not a candidate for the position. Mr. Oppenheimer had been offered the position of superintendent last year, but had declined, preferring to serve as assistant superintendent.

A record of some sort has been established in the position of superintendent with four men serving in that position, three resigning to accept positions with the New York city board of water supply, while the fourth man died after serving but a few months, all with a 12-month period.

None Hurt in Crash

Ice on the highway near the Charles Parker turn on the Flat-bush road Tuesday afternoon about 4:30 o'clock was responsible for a two-car crash but the operators of both vehicles escaped injury. A Ford pick-up owned by Leon Wilbur, Tremper avenue coal dealer, driven by William Scism of R.F.D. 1, skidded on the curve and that car and a Ford pick-up of James E. Leahy of Hurley, a machinist in the employ of the Ulster County Highway Department, were damaged. The accident was investigated by Deputy Sheriffs Vredenberg and Brown.

Finding Is Made Against Byer Before Judge Traver; Crash Took Place in 1937 on Rosendale Road

Verdicts totaling $1,875 were awarded Tuesday afternoon by a jury in county court which heard three negligence actions brought against Leonard Joseph Byer of this city.

Byer was the driver of a car which on August 10, 1937, was in collision with a car of Louis Vicoli of New Paltz and which was driven by his wife. The accident happened near the Black place on the Rosendale road shortly after a shower.

Mr. Vicoli was awarded $400, his wife $1,400 and her mother, Mrs. Rena Birago $75.

A. W. Lent appearing for plaintiffs alleged that Byer was driving at an excessive speed, applied his brakes on a wet slippery road and skidded into the Vicoli car which was traveling toward New Paltz. Byer, who had driven a car only a short time, was coming to Kingston. Byer claimed his brakes locked and he skidded but he denied driving at a fast rate and the defense alleged that the plaintiff had not done all in his power to avoid the crash.

All jurors have been excused for the term and a short session of court will be held this afternoon. In excusing the jurors Judge Traver thanked them for their services and commented upon the unusually large number of cases which had been disposed of at the term particularly the criminal cases.

New Panel of 18 Prospective Jurors to Get Examination Friday in Orange County Probe

A new panel of 18 prospective jurors will be available Friday at Goshen to complete the extraordinary grand jury which will investigate alleged corruption in Newburgh and Orange county, the Associated Press says.

Called yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Ely W. Personius after the original panel of 24 had been exhausted, the jurors were instructed to meet Friday for final selection. Nine of the original panel were excused.

The Orange county board of supervisors, meantime, approved the first bills of the investigation ordered by Governor Lehman after a federal grand jury charged widespread vice, gambling and corruption in the county and city. After lengthy debate during which two supervisors, Chairman Fred Earl and James L. Gillen refused on advice of County Attorney P. V. D. Gott to participate in auditing the bills, the board ordered that they be paid. Gott told the board he asked Earl and Gillen not to participate in the audit because of an "attempt by intimidation to influence" their action.

Already chosen to sit on the grand jury were: Mrs. Ada Mac Lee, Newburgh housewife; Mrs. Ethlyn P. Miller, Middletown housewife; Emmet Smith, Monroe handyman; Leon C. Schauer, Port Jervis florist; George T. Brundage, Johnson chauffeur; William P. McLaughlin, Washingtonville farmer; Fred Eickbaum, Port Jervis salesman; James M. Coleman, Newburgh farmer; Ernest Cables, Newburgh stockkeeper; Wesley Bell, Middletown railroad clerk; Mrs. Mildred A. Wilson, Middletown housewife; Frederick Woolsey, Middletown mechanic; Edward Burke, Port Jervis trainman; William Hubner, Goshen painter and Edward V. Beatty, Monroe caretaker.

Couple Held for Forgery

Sheriff Molyneux and Trooper William Reynolds of the B. C. I. are to leave St. Paul, Minnesota, tonight to bring back to Ulster county Arthur Canfield and Emily Gelselhart, who are wanted on forgery charges. The couple, both of Napanoch, are charged by Mrs. Canfield with having forged her name to certain documents and are being held by the St. Paul police awaiting the arrival of the officers from Ulster county. Canfield and the Gelselhart girl left Napanoch some time ago. Meanwhile Mrs. Canfield has begun divorce proceedings against her husband.

Condition Serious

The condition of Joseph, the seven-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Scille of 185 North street, still remains serious at the Kingston Hospital. The child was severely burned when the crib in which he was sleeping caught fire on January 30.

Davis Roars That He Tells Truth of Hines and Schultz

New York, Feb. 8 (AP)—J. Richard (Dixie) Davis, the former attorney for the Dutch Schultz policy gang, raised his voice to a roar today as he insisted he had told the truth about the relations of Tammany District Leader James J. Hines to the Schultz syndicate.

An acknowledged member of the racket who had pleaded guilty and turned state's evidence, the attorney was put through an angry cross-examination by Lloyd Paul Stryker of the defense. Yesterday, Davis had testified to paying thousands of dollars to Hines for political protection for the Schultz numbers game.

"You have sworn falsely many times, haven't you?" Stryker cried out.

"To help myself, yes," said Davis.

"Would you testify falsely here to help yourself?"

"I would never testify falsely to destroy another man, where his life and liberty were at stake," Davis shouted.

Asked if he was not now trying to injure Hines, he cried out: "Not."

When Stryker recalled to him that prosecution conceivably could follow his acknowledged past perjuries, he wiped perspiration from his face.

Sargent's Band at Broadway Theatre

The regular weekly stage show at Broadway Theatre, Thursday night, lasting 40 minutes will feature in conjunction with George Sargent's band, a dance team, whistling star and comedy dancer. Sargent's band will open with a special arrangement of "Marie" by Arnold Stanley, male vocalist, and trumpet player, and will feature Emily Burrell singing "It Took a Million Years" one of the latest song hits.

The dance team, Mildred and Maurice will do a tango, Larry Hammond, one of America's outstanding whistling stars, will offer the same routine he did at the Riviera and Jerry White, the dancing comedian, will close the show.

Arnold Stanley will sing "I'll Get By" for his vocal offering this Thursday and George Sargent will direct his ensemble in his own arrangement of "I Found My Yellow Basket."

Katherine M. Murphy will represent the Ulster County Committee on Tuberculosis and Public Health at a Regional Conference and Institute for executive secretaries residing in the Hudson valley on February 9 and 10 at 52 Gramercy Park, New York city. Other state committee meetings are scheduled for Albany and Buffalo. Reports on the recent Christmas Seals sale, as well as further methods in health education will be discussed at these meetings.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Feb. 8 (AP)—Many

traders deserted the Stock Market today after a sluggish advance tried their patience.

Some steel, motor and aircraft shares—leading the forenoon rise—retained gains of a point or so near the final hour but net price changes in most shares were minor.

As the market bogged down, transactions slowed to a rate of about 500,000 shares for the full session, the smallest since last September.

Outstanding on the upside were Bethlehem Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, U. S. Steel, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Boeing Consolidated and Southern Railway, U. S. Rubber and Glenn Martin.

Utility issues encountered renewed buying in a steady bond market. Leading commodities were mixed and narrow.

In the Curb stock list, gains were in the majority, ranging to more than a point in Electric Bond and Share, Lockheed Aircraft, Consolidated Mining and Gulf Oil.

Traders seemed to give belated recognition to what has generally been considered favorable news from the motor industry this week—the 75 cents dividend for the first quarter on General Motors common stock and its preliminary 1938 profit figures, showing earnings of $2.17 a share as result of a strong fourth quarter comeback.

Chrysler, whose 1938 earnings were expected later in the week, fell in step behind the upturn in General Motors.

Tuesday's Market Dull, Stocks Drop

Yesterday's market was an uninteresting affair, with the volume of 570,000 shares not much more than half that of the preceding day and all averages showing a decline at the close. There was no apparent reason in the tone of the day's news, either foreign or domestic, to cause uneasiness and it seems to have been mostly a case of lack of buyers. Utilities failed to show the strength evidenced in the last several sessions and fell off with the rest, declining 0.60 point for the day, to 24.92 in the Dow-Jones averages. Industrial issues lost 0.93 point, to 144.10 and rails were down 0.31 point, to 29.94.

Bonds were generally lower and commodities closed irregularly off. There was less trading on the foreign exchanges, with Amsterdam firm, London mixed and Paris weak.

Following a White House conference yesterday with congressional committee leaders and three ICC commissioners it was indicated that the first objective of any railroad legislation now in prospect will be a lightening of federal regulation of carriers financial affairs and correction of alleged financial abuses.

A preliminary report issued yesterday by General Motors shows profits in 1938 equal to $2.17 a common share. This compares with net of $4.38 a share in 1937. For the first nine months of the year the company had net of 73 cents a share.

As the effect of snows and heavy storms last week carloadings were cut more than had been expected and loadings were around 574,000 cars, a drop from the previous week and comparing with 565,000 a year ago.

Chevrolet retail sales in January were up 31.7 per cent over 1938 month; Pontiac sales were up 64.3 per cent.

Net income of Standard Brands in 1938 was $8,721,305, or 62 cents on common, vs. adjusted net of $9,832,234, or 73 cents a share in 1937.

General American Transportation had net of $3,004,599, or $2.91 a share vs. $4,542,656, or $4.44 a share in 1937.

New York, Ontario & Western Ry., in preliminary report for year 1938, shows net loss of $1,994,314, compared with net loss of $1,675,238 in 1937.

Frederick H. Ecker, chairman of the board of Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., yesterday told the monopoly committee that the present size of the large insurance companies is not detrimental to the interests of the policy holders and that investment funds have not reached a point where they are "troublesome." Mr. Ecker told the committee that there was "no such thing as a no-risk investment," but that policy holders were protected against widespread losses by the fact that the Metropolitan now has 100,000 separate investments.

S. S. Kresge declared two common dividends of 30 cents each, one payable March 13, the other June 13. Paid 30 cents last December.

Secord-Vacuum Oil Co. declared a dividend of 25 cents.

Two People Hurt
In 3-Car Crash

Two people suffered injury Tuesday afternoon about 5:30 o'clock in a three-car crash, a mile south of Milton on the two-lane concrete of Route 9-W. Neither of the men appeared severely injured.

A Ford truck owned by Jacob Lebowitz of Brooklyn was traveling south driven by Clifford Prior, negro, of Brooklyn. Following was an Oldsmobile sedan of Michael A. DeVasto of Newburgh. Traveling northerly was a DeSoto car owned and operated by Frank Roehn of West Lebanon.

The car coming north, according to Sergeant Hulse who made an investigation, apparently skidded on an icy pavement and the DeSoto and the Ford truck collided. The Ford truck loaded with fruit tipped over. The Oldsmobile was also struck on the left side and Roehn, driver of the DeSoto, suffered injuries to his left elbow and neck. Jacob Lebowitz was injured and bruised about the chest.

Bus Leaves Road
Below New Paltz

Passengers on a bus operated by Thomas McKenzie, of Brooklyn escaped injury Monday afternoon when the vehicle left the road on an icy spot on the New Paltz-Ireland Corners road near the Roeliff DuBois farm and ran for 100 yards through an adjoining field. The driver brought the bus to a stop and then brought the vehicle back to the road without damage.

The bus ran off the road after it had skidded on a icy spot and struck the car of James H. Schirber of Highland, a 1937 Buick.

The bus left the road shortly after an accident at the same spot had injured five persons who were returning home to Highland from Walkkill. The five were riding in a truck operated by Dominick Petrino and were WPA workers.

Walter Palmatier, 54, suffered a broken hip while the others suffered cuts and lacerations of the head, body, arms or legs. The injured were treated by Dr. De Witt of New Paltz. Others injured were Julius Fasso, Joseph Plot and Graham Bilyou, all of Highland.

State Trooper Andrew Klein of New Paltz made an investigation. The truck apparently skidded on the icy road and overturned in the ditch.

lotted "reservations" under international control in either British, German or French-owned Madagascar was advanced by Alfred Rosenberg, chief of Nazi spiritual activities.

He told diplomats and news papermen the plan, most specific yet presented by a high Nazi, would provide for from 12,000,000 to 15,000,000 Jews to be supervised by a governor or a "League of Nations."

Colonial Secretary Malcolm MacDonald, with an Arab-Jew peace conference in session, attempted without success to settle differences between opposing factions of Arab delegates.

An agreement as to Arab representation was considered vital to the peace parley, through which it is hoped to solve the Palestine problem.

About the Folks

Mrs. Morris Stone of 105 Abel street is recovering at her home from an operation performed last Friday at St. Peter's Hospital in Albany by Dr. Robert R. Robinson, specialist in oral surgery.

Perfect Model

New York, Feb. 8 (AP)—Nina MacDougald, a brunette, was introduced today by the Society of Illustrators as their "perfect model."

She was chosen from the feminine contingent which participated in the illustrators' annual "stag" Friday. Miss MacDougald, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan MacDougald of Freeport, became a model a year ago after winning a Long Island beauty contest. She said she is 5 feet 8, weighs 135, and has seen 20 summers.

ROSENDALE

Rosendale, Feb. 8.—Mrs. Peter Gleason has returned to her home at Monmouth Beach, N. J., after spending some time with her sister, Mrs. Alan McKenzie.

Harry Quinn of Rosendale is employed by the Cut Rate Drug Store of Kingston.

The Young Grangers of Rosendale held a special meeting at the Grange Hall to discuss plans for an evening of entertainment and dancing to be held Friday, February 17.

Rehearsals of the religious play "Queen Esther's Dream" under direction of Mrs. Harry West, are well under way. The play will be presented at the Grange Hall on Friday.

Exhibit of Crystallized Gold

The finest mass of crystallized gold in existence is owned by the American Museum of Natural History and is on exhibition in the hall of minerals and gems. It was found in the Mother Lode district of Nevada county, California. The specimen weighs three and three-quarter ounces and has a lace or sponge like structure, making a good size handful. The gold took this form when the rock in which it was originally a minor adulterant cooled and crystallized. The rock substances solidified at a much higher temperature than the gold, and the liquid metal finally gathered in one place under heavy pressure. The cooling process was long and slow, giving the gold a chance to crystallize. Nuggets of gold so formed are common, but the crystalline form of gold is rare.

The funeral of Patrick T. Joyce was held from his late home, 214 Foxhall avenue, this morning at 9 o'clock and 9:30 o'clock, at St. Mary's Church, where a requiem Mass was offered for the repose of his soul by the Rev. William H. Kennedy. The services were very largely attended by his many relatives, friends and fellow workmen from the West Shore Railroad Company. During the Mass at the offertory Martin Kelly sang O Salutaris and at the conclusion he also sang Ave Maria. Many Mass cards and beautiful floral pieces were sent to the home and banded about the casket. Last evening a large delegation of St. Mary's Holy Name Society visited the home and recited the Rosary under the leadership of Father Kennedy. Later a large number of Kingston Council, No. 275, Knights of Columbus, met at the home and were led in the recitation of the Rosary by their chaplain, the Rev. Henry E. Herdgen. The casket bearers were Joseph Sheppard, Gustave Kogel, Grover Henderson, Harry Klothe, Frank Ruskie and Patrick Gliday. Burial was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery and the final absolution was given by the Rev. Peter J. Fox.

A high Mass of requiem was sung this morning at 9:30 o'clock at St. Joseph's Church for John J. Lane by the Rev. John D. Simmons and was very largely attended by his many relatives and friends. The large funeral cortege left the home at 197 Washington avenue and proceeded to the church where the services were held. The children's choir sang the responses during the Mass and William Raible, soloist, sang at the offertory "O Salutaris" and at the conclusion he also sang "Jesu Dulcis Memoria." The Rev. Benjamin Roth of St. Mary's Church at St. Catharines, during the Mass, an unusually large and beautiful floral display was banded about the casket and scores of Mass cards in the form of spiritual bouquets were placed nearby. The Holy Name Society of St. Joseph's Church met at the home at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening and under the direction of Father Simmons recited the Holy Rosary for the repose of his soul. Labor Opposes Proposed Bill

A forecast of concerted effort by labor groups to defeat a bill which would require civil service examinations for publicly owned transit companies, is indicated today in a letter made public by Jacob J. Schneider, Ulster county chairman of the American Labor Party of New York.

The letter follows: Dear Sir:

"On behalf of the Transport Workers Union, the American Labor Party of Ulster county has gone on record as sponsoring a chain letter protest to Senator Wicks relative to one of the most vicious attempts on the part of an elective representative to disrupt a labor organization."

"Senator Wicks is sponsoring a bill in the State Senate which would impose Civil Service status on the 20,000 subway and elevated workers in New York city, in the event that the city takes over the transit lines under unification. This bill, if passed, will be the stepping stone to ruin all labor organizations in the field of transportation, in the event that they too, become publicly owned, by the passage of similar legislation to prevent the continued growth of labor unions, in some instances dissolve entire unions of many thousands of workers. This is the proposal of the bill which is sponsored by the senator from the 25th Senatorial district."

"This bill, if passed, will throw the collective bargaining rights of some 20,000 workers into the hands of politicians, to be ruthlessly used as a means to advance their own political ends, by making a political football of the many thousands of jobs involved. The membership of the United Transport Workers Union, in sending out its appeal to block the 'Wicks Bill,' asks that all labor, organized and unorganized, do whatever is within their power to help the membership preserve its gains made in the city of New York. The American Labor Party of Ulster county is advising that all friends of labor, members of labor unions, help defeat the Wicks Bill, by sending penny postcards of protest to Senator Wicks at the Capitol, Albany, N. Y., and urging the signature of petitions which are being circulated."

ANONYMOUS COMMUNICATIONS
 The Freeman occasionally receives communications signed "Taxpayer" or "Reader" commenting on statements, news items and editorials published in its columns. No clue is given as to the identity of the writer and consequently the Freeman is unable to judge as to its responsibility.

Typical of these missives is a letter to the editor received this week and entitled, "An answer to Mr. Oppenheimer's statement to consider reshoveling snow." It was signed "A taxpayer, who likes clean streets, not mud holes or lakes."

Why should a taxpayer, who helps pay the city's bills and who has a legitimate complaint, or in his opinion thinks he has a legitimate or reasonable charge against the Board of Public Works superintendent, want to conceal his name from the general public? If the accusations are made in good faith, why should he want to hide behind the skirts of anonymity? And it also seems fair to ask, why should anyone expect a newspaper to accept as authoritative an article whose author is unknown to it? Do readers pay attention to communications that are unsigned? They do not. When "Pro Bono Publico" takes his pen in hand, readers cannot be certain that his statements are honestly made.

Usually anonymous letters abound in insinuations, innuendoes and are replete with gross exaggerations. To vent one's spleen of their personal grudge through the newspapers and at the same time hide their identity typifies very often the character members of the unsigned communications coterie.

Communications from readers are always welcomed when the latter are identified. If the letter is offered for publication the true name must be attached on arrival as evidence of good faith.

WE MUST PAY FOR COMFORTS

The Board of Public Works acted quickly when the heavy snow of the season fell and if the crew kept continuously and everlastingly at it, the roads of the city would be free of hummocks and there would be less slush to wade through and less ice at the curbing. Opinion among taxpayers is divided on the question of whether the huge cost of doing this thorough job of removing all the snow from the city streets would justify the expense. It is a debatable question when one considers the reduced incomes of the harassed taxpayers.

The snow removal problem in the city is much more difficult than that of the county area. In the county the snow is pushed from the road, but in the city snow must be trucked away. This work is slow and entails great expense, calling for the hiring of trucks and the employment of extra men. With the heavy daytime traffic it would take a very long time to do a worthwhile job.

In the interests of economy, it is logical to keep expenses down, but if the convenience of the public is to be given first consideration then the procedure would be to go to it and forget that the taxpayers will have to foot the bills if they want the comforts.

The fact remains, however, that some of the streets are in bad condition and the gutters are jammed with snow and ice. The melting snow and ice will have no place to go when the thaw comes and the result will be slippery sidewalks and intersections. Rain will create the same condition. Another snow storm will aggravate the situation.

It would seem then that in the interests of safety, economy and convenience to the public, the best method is to make the streets passable and then keep the crosswalks and intersections clear and the catch basins open.

35-BILLION PENSION BILL

A new pension bill before this session of Congress makes government spending to date a picnic. Introduced by Representative Rankin, it is said to have the support of the American Legion.

The bill proposes quite simply to provide compensation for the widows and children of World War veterans, but does not mean merely dependents of men who died in service. Its definitions are illuminating.

A "widow" is any person who married before May 13, 1938, a veteran who entered the service of the army or navy before the Armistice in 1918 and who served for 90 days during the World War. This includes the widows of men who die long after the war and of causes not connected in any way with war service. It includes widows of women who served in the yeoman branch of the navy. These men would be eligible for pensions as long as they lived.

What such a bill, if enacted, would mean to the United States is indicated by the fact that the government paid pensions to the widows of Revolutionary War veterans until 1906 when the last widow died, a woman who was born 23 years after the end of that war and who lived to be 100 years old.

A great many more men were involved in the World War than in the American Revolution. There will be enough widows, widowers and children of World War veterans, it has been estimated, to make the total cost of such a pension something like thirty-five billion dollars.

SAVED BY A SONG

The other evening in London the British air minister attempted to speak in behalf of a Conservative party candidate for office. It was a tough district, however, and Conservative sympathizers were practically non-existent. The speaker was booed and hissed and finally drowned out entirely by yelling and fighting.

At that point he lifted his voice in song. Whatever his vocal abilities, his selection was excellent. As the strains of "God Save the King" rose amid the din, the crowd quickly quieted. The police arrived before the song's end, and the speaker was able to duck safely out of the back door and away.

The moral of this tale seems to be that it pays to know your national anthem. Britons have an advantage there in the simplicity of theirs. Imagine Norman Thomas trying to quiet a Jersey City crowd by singing "The Star-Spangled Banner."

This is the age of blah, bull and ballyhoo. Still, occasionally, there's the sound of a still, small voice appealing to human reason.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

 FITS, EPILEPSY, HYSTERIA, Etc.

When you are told that someone is in a fit you naturally expect it to be an epileptic fit. When you see the individual and he is lying quietly, no movement of the limbs, eyes, and face, no bitten tongue, you recognize at once that although the face is pale and he is unconscious, it is not epilepsy but a case of fainting.

You are reasonably sure that it is not hysteria because there is no struggling, no kicking, no waving of the arms and, what is most important, the individual with hysteria is conscious. He is fully aware of all that is going on about him. In fact, the hysterical so "arranges" his "attack" that it will take place in public or where there are present whom he wishes to be present. There is no bitten tongue, no tangling of the head against the radiator or furniture because, unlike the epileptic, the hysterical never hurts himself while in a fit.

When there is an attack of apoplexy there is usually a history of long standing disease of the bloodvessels. The attack is sudden, there is loss of consciousness, and paralysis, usually on one side of the body. In slight attacks only the speech, face, or hand is affected. The pulse is slow, breathing hard, and the face is flushed, not pale. Some forms of acute poisoning resemble apoplexy and paralysis may be present.

In an ordinary fainting attack the face is pale and wet with perspiration, pulse weak, the breathing is slow and feeble and recovery soon takes place.

In his little book "Illness" Dr. S. Henning Belgrave, London, England, outlines the treatment for fainting, epilepsy, apoplexy, and hysteria.

In fainting, patient should be placed perfectly flat with head low and any tight band around neck removed. Fresh air or fanning is usually all that is needed to restore consciousness.

In an epileptic attack, the main thought is to prevent him hurting himself—something should be placed between the teeth to prevent biting the tongue.

In apoplexy treatment is to leave alone; no attempt should be made to move him until arrival of the physician.

Stamps In The News

(By The AP Feature Service)

It was Eric the Red, a Norwegian, who first called it Greenland—to make people want to go there. Eric sailed west from Iceland in 982 to find the islands reported by an earlier Norwegian sailor, Gunnbjorn, and for three years he explored the southwest coasts of Gunnbjorn's land. Then he went back, rounded up 23 boatloads of colonists and returned to Greenland with them to build his house at Brattalid, north of where Julianhaab now stands. A few years later, Leif Ericson introduced Christianity. The Norsemen came and died out. The Eskimos stayed on. Denmark acquired sovereign rights to Greenland.

land's west coast plus Angmagssalik, an eastern trading station, and in 1917 took over the whole island. Norway kicked about hunting and sealing rights on the east coast, but the Danes sat tight.

Today Greenland is Denmark's only colony. It has a total area of 736,518 square miles (bigger than Alaska, but smaller than Mexico), of which only 31,284 square miles (about South Carolina's size) are free of the perpetual ice sheet. And at last—counting the island held 405 Danes and 16,222 Eskimos. Many of the Danes are employed in the cryolite mines—cryolite is an icy-looking mineral used in making soda and aluminum.

Greenland, a newcomer to the album, is now represented by an attractive set of seven new Denmark-printed stamps. The 1, 5, 7, 10 and 15-cent values show King Christian X's bust against a background of Greenland's icy mountains, while the 30-cent and 1-krona, slightly larger, show a polar bear.

A special parcel post (pakkepost) series of five stamps was issued in 1905 by Denmark for use on parcels sent between Greenland and Denmark. The design showed a polar bear on a shield, surmounted by a crown. This unatalogued series might claim to be Greenland's first, though it bore the name of no country.

Thorvaldsen's Return

The handsome Thorvaldsen commemorative set from Denmark marks the centenary of the return of the Danish sculptor to his native land after living 41 years in Rome. The 5-cent maroon and 30-cent blue show a portrait study of the sculptor seated; the 10-cent violet depicts his classical white marble statue of Jason, carved for Thomas Hope, a wealthy English art patron.

Bertel Thorvaldsen (1770-1844) was born in Copenhagen, but his father was a woodcarver from Iceland. At the Copenhagen school of art he won the traveling studentship and went to Rome in 1797. He began to imitate the classical Roman sculpture and scored his first big success with his Jason. He died a tomb for Plus VII in St. Peter's, and back in Copenhagen sculptured a series of great statues of Jesus and the apostles for the Frue Church. Thorvaldsen died wealthy, leaving much of his fortune to build and endow an art museum in Copenhagen. He bequeathed his own art collection and the models for all his sculpture to

YOUR FEDERAL INCOME TAX

No. 9

Who is the Head of a Family

A taxpayer, though single, who supports and maintains in one household one or more individuals who are closely connected with him by blood relationship, relationship by marriage, or by adoption, and whose right to exercise family control and provide for these dependent individuals is based upon some moral or legal obligation, is the head of a family and entitled to the same exemption allowed a married person—$2,500. Also he may claim a $400 credit for each dependent, if such dependent person is under 18 years of age or is by reason of advanced age or poor health (mental or physical) incapable of self-support. For example, a household which supports in one daughter 17 years old is entitled to an exemption of $2,500 as the head of a family plus a credit of $400 for each dependent, a total of $3,300. The $400 credit, however, does not apply to the wife or husband of a taxpayer, though one may be totally dependent upon the other.

Several factors are involved in determining whether a person who files a return as the head of a family is to be thus classified. The element of either legal or financial dependency must exist. A taxpayer who supports in his home minor children over whom he exercises family control is classified as the head of a family, even though the children may have an income of their own sufficient for their maintenance. If he does not support them, but does exercise family control, he cannot be classified as the head of a family.

If an individual supported is an adult and there rests upon the taxpayer a moral or legal obligation to provide a home and care for such individual, the exemption as the head of a family is allowed, provided the individual is financially dependent. If the individual is not financially dependent, the taxpayer maintains the common home and furnishes the chief support, does not apply.

For income-tax purposes there can be only one head of a family and the exemption cannot be divided. Not infrequently claims for the $2,500 exemption are received from two or more members of a family.

It should be remembered that a single person, whether or not the head of a family, is required to file a return if his or her net income for 1938 was $1,000 or more, regardless of whether the return is nontaxable by reason of the $2,500 exemption.

Solution to Federal Judgeship Would Be Vesting Power of Appointment in Committee of Judges

By DAVID LAWRENCE

(Copyright, 1939)

Washington, Feb. 8—The story of the friction between the two Virginia Senators and the President relative to the naming of a federal district judge now has been formally disclosed, and it does no credit to the method, customary though it be under Republican and Democratic administrations, whereby federal judges are selected in America.

The President, on the one hand, feels he has the right to nominate whoever he pleases and that the Senate as a whole, not one or two senators—has the right to refuse to confirm anybody it pleases.

But this tends to oversimplify the problem, which, in reality, is whether a president may be guided by political factional considerations in the naming of a man of his liking, and whether the senators, on their part, may use, in effect, their veto power to check the confirmation of such a nomination.

In both instances, considerations of politics play a part. The President doesn't admit it, any more than does either of the Virginia senators. But the moment the controversy arose, it acquired a political aspect. Thus, the publication in a Virginia newspaper that Governor Price, allied with the Roosevelt faction, would have the "veto power" over federal appointments caused Senator Glass to seek a specific denial from Mr. Roosevelt on that point.

The president states that he was not in the habit of confirming or denying nominees, but Senator Glass, on the other hand, chose to construe the absence of a specific denial as a sort of affirmation. Doubtless he was prompted to do this because it is well known that political leaders throughout Virginia opposed to the Glass-Byrd faction would so construe Mr. Roosevelt's indifference to the publisher's report about Governor Price's alleged veto power. As long as the President did not categorically deny the report, his supporters in Virginia might be tempted to exploit the position of the Roosevelt faction as the one favored at the White House, and this naturally arouses the ire of the opposite group.

What happened later in the fullness of a routine with respect to the asking of suggestions from the senators about judges was important only in that the letter of the custom was followed. Subsequently, when the names submitted by Senators Byrd and Glass were pushed aside and the President did, in fact, pick a man who had been identified over the state through the activities of his friends as allied with the pre-administration faction, it was natural that the political turmoil should be increased.

The vote in the United States Senate whereby the nomination was rejected simply meant that nearly all the Senators felt they had better stick together, since, at any time, a similar situation might arise in their own states. It was by no means related to any one issue.

What the disinterested observer or such political occurrences as the squabble arose between the President and the Virginia Senators, someone at the department of justice or elsewhere in the administration didn't see a bit of quiet searching for some outstanding citizen who was disconnected from either faction, yet would be acceptable to the two United States Senators.

Mr. Roosevelt in his farewell letter to the rejected judge rightly pointed out that nothing had been adduced which in the slightest degree reflected on the ability or integrity of the nominee, but President's further comment will bear the fruit he hopes for, especially when he says the rejection "will have a good effect on the citizenship and the thinking of the whole nation in that it will tend to create a greater interest in the constitution of our country."

What the President means by this is that the controversy will tend to emphasize the untrammeled right of the Chief Executive to exercise his appointing power without regard to politics with regard to it, so long as he selects a qualified person, and the improbability of the Senate presuming to reject a qualified person just because of political considerations.

The probable effect of the controversy will be to focus the attention of the American people on the fact that political factions feel federal judgeships are part of the "patronage" of political warfare, and that men appointed for life who are supposed to administer justice to all are part of the spoils system of present-day politics. This, in some respects, is a blatant denial of the spirit of constitutionalism and would long ago have been barred by public opinion had there been palpable instances, such as have just occurred in Virginia and Louisiana, to accentuate the whole system of selecting federal district court judges. The Senate has assumed an embarrassing and awkward position by allowing political considerations to become so influential, and so has the President. The only constructive solution, therefore, is to apply the power of the constitution, which says federal judges may be appointed by the "courts of law." An act of Congress could vest the appointing power in the committees of judges of the United States Court of Appeals, having, if necessary, due regard in total number each year to some statutory principle of selection from a bi-partisan roster furnished by the local bar associations.

DANGEROUS SERVICE

by GRACE ELLIOTT TAYLOR

The Characters
 Peter Maline: Madcap journalist.
 Petronella: His young, pretty sister.

Yesterday: Through the aid of a man she meets in the plane, René Howard, Petronella is allowed to see Peter in prison.

Chapter 19

Plan For The Future

PETER'S one arm hugged her, marveling. Her hands touched his rough clothes. Her eyes were shocked. Their lids were red and swollen with weeping.

"I didn't think I'd ever get to you. How is your shoulder? Painful?"

"Not too bad. However did you manage it? I was only juggled last night!"

"By air, from Croydon this morning, Martin Rowdon saw me. He says—" He pulled her over to the window.

"Careful, that man speaks English. He's spying on me, and he's listening." She dropped her voice to a whisper. "He thinks he can get pleased, if you play 'mad English'."

"Luckily I thought of that, too. You'd be surprised at the way I'm getting my news."

"James and Marigold saw me. They sent their love. She had about it in the papers. She telephoned after I left, and drove straight to Croydon. She was awfully upset—"

"Their eyes met. 'Send the sweet wire, for me. Something light, and cheerful, and my love.'"

"Yes, I will." He could not understand why Petronella did not smile. "Good word, that's terrible! Look here, I'm not coming to tell him? He was not coming. They had let her in. She looked out fifteen, in that rather creased men suit, that broad-brimmed hat, which had decided to turn back from her woe-begone, round face. Nothing less like a dangerous spy's accomplice could ever have gained admission into the highest of Glaz, and you get in easily!" She shook her head.

"No. If it hadn't been for the help of someone called René Howard, whom I met in the plane coming over, and his aunt, the Baroness von Gratz, I don't think I could have discovered they'd moved you here. From the Mobit Frankenstein. And they would have refused to let me see you. But my friend impressed upon them the fact that we knew you were too seriously wounded to see me, because of your wire Peter, it was lucky you sent that! How did you?"

"A true friend, called Hans, sent for me. He saw me arrested. He helped. So did the publicity about you. Any day at last there were two forms to fill in, and I was home."

"You marvelous girl. Where is this René?"

"Waiting for me." But still she did not smile, but buried her head against him. "I've got to tell you something so awful, Peter."

"What is it? I knew you had gone to—"

"Dead!"

"MAISIE. She died two hours after I left, James telephoned."

"Dead! I didn't even know she was really ill." He gripped her very tightly.

"And Peter, she knew, but she sent me to you, sent me away, and left all alone." Petronella was shivering.

"You poor kid! You've had a terrible time. Two shocks like that! I wish I could get out, and keep you company. You must go home."

"Yes. When I know you're to be released I'll be all right. René is taking me to see the Palaces at Potsdam. She tried to smile. 'I'll go home in time for the funeral. The Randall and Dr. Harris are arranging everything. Afterwards I'll come back, if you're not free. Then you'll have your share of me, just for a little while. It is awfully sad. It was cancer. She'd known for three months. I tell you the things she said, Peter, it is almost as if she died to me.'"

"He listened to her. 'Wonderful! Maisie was a top-notch girl. But she was wrong. You ought to stay at home and marry James.'"

"What did he say? Did he exclaim?"

"She shook her head. 'No. He didn't say much. But it was just the same. Peter, I more likely to meet him, if I'm with you. He is some government job. He is in Moscow by now.' From the way she looked at her, she knew that, in his opinion, her love was unfathomable."

"I don't like the idea. If Peter makes good on the foreign staff, he'll become an official war correspondent; he'll be sent to some hot spots. I don't trust him to look after you."

"What you are going to discover is that he can be trusted to look after him," she laughed. "You'll see!"

"You're a little sure of it. We'll see you, you know."

"Peter, I've got an idea—"

"Don't have ideas here. You're a commissionaire. You seem to me to be a little sure of it. We'll see you, you know."

"I'll see you, you know."

"I'll see you, you know."

honorable," he joked. Bending his sandy head, he kissed her forehead. Petronella clung to him. She felt that he would soon be free to accompany her. But her heart experienced a moment of panic. You could never be sure. Charges of spying were frightening, incalculable. Sometimes they ended in smiles, bows, compliments. You were released within two or three days. But sometimes they were long trials, false evidence against you, scare headlines, and, at the end, a rain of bullets for your heart.

"Aufwiedersehen, darling," she breathed.

"Aufwiedersehen."

A week after Maisie Mason was laid in her deep grave in Ballfield churchyard, the telephone summoned Petronella from upstairs. She was busy preparing for her move to the cottage. At first, she could only part with one thing in ten. She had reached the despairing stage of discarding all but one in twenty. Hodgson and his wife were going to live in the village. The "Forest House" was to be sold by auction. The furniture Petronella was taking to the cottage was to be stored until the redecoration of Mrs. Hodgson's former home was finished.

She ran to the phone, and answered it.

"Berlin wants you, Miss Malone," said Elsie at the exchange. It was Peter.

"That you, Peter? I'm being escorted across the frontier in ten minutes by a couple of fellows who look as if they might burst their uniforms if I told them a story and made them laugh. Understand?"

"Peter! I just can't believe it. Free! You'll be met by Movietone, and Gaumont British, and half London at Victoria Station. Your very worst photo has been in every paper."

Not On The Program

FOR a moment there was silence. Then, "Good word, that's terrible! Look here, I'm not coming to tell him? He was not coming. They had let her in. She looked out fifteen, in that rather creased men suit, that broad-brimmed hat, which had decided to turn back from her woe-begone, round face. BROAD STREET HOLLOW SCHOOL GIVES RATINGS FOR JANUARY

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

NEW YORK—Such a day... Suuuuuuch a busy day...

10:30—Get up, breakfast, glance through morning papers, depart for office.

11:02—Scan through the mail and discover this note from the wife of a friend of mine who is in Florida: "You ought to come down here for awhile. Tuck, you could pick up lots of material on the beach..."

What do you mean by material, honey? ... Also discover 17 missives from press-agents, which gives rise to the thought that reading 17 blurbs is a lot of time to waste on press-agents.

12:54—Two fast dogs and java at Hamburger Joe's.

1:30—Go on shopping tour with Janet Gaynor and Adrian, the designer—only they aren't aware that I'm along. They are about two paces ahead of me as they browse through Macy's.

4:33—Get a telephone tip that the police intend to pull a surprise Chinatown raid in half an hour, and decide to attend.

THE red doesn't come off and all I get is a long, dreary subway ride.

4:55—Spend an hour with a temperamental typewriter composing essays, then make a belated break for the barber, who eyes me critically and states, "You're about two weeks overdue, aren't you?"

Grill with Mrs. John McKay, wife of the head of the Port of New Orleans, and their daughter Mignon, who came up from Louisiana for "just one day to see Hellzapoppin'."

But they aren't staying just a day—"Daddy went right back home to see a new motor boat he bought, but mother and I are obliged to stay at least 10 days, else how can we see 'The Boys from Syracuse' and 'Abie Lincoln' and Fredric March in 'The American Way' and four or five other shows and buy some clothes and maybe visit some friends at West Point?"

SHE is certainly correct. You just can't do all those things in one day.

8:40—Attend opening of Noel Coward's new revue 'Set to Music,' starring Bea Lillie, and the impression is confirmed that no first night is quite like a Coward first night.

11:50—Meet Billy Rose at the Diamond Horseshoe and he tells me of a man he knows who wrestles live sharks... He's in training off the Florida coast now. Rose intend to build a big salt-water pool, stock it with sharks, and bring the guy up for the Fair.

1:35—Buy the bulge editions of three morning papers, hail a hack, and home.

2:05—Try to read but oh so sleepy, and off goes the light. And that's that.

Judge Claims Record

Syracuse, (AP)—Municipal Court Judge Patrick J. Ryan, who recently celebrated his 75th birthday, believes he is one of the few jurists in the country who can claim a record of more than 40 consecutive years on the same bench. State law requires the judges in New York courts to retire at 75.

When Judge Ryan reached the age of 70, he argued the law did not apply to his court, and he was upheld by the higher courts. It isn't how old you are in years that counts, says Judge Ryan. "It's how you feel, I feel 62."

Prospective Employer—Do you think you know enough to be useful in this office?

Boy—Know enough? Why, I left my last place because the boss said I knew too much.

For every ounce of honey it makes, a bee must visit 219,000 flowers.

Sam—You look all in today, Bill. What's the trouble?

Bill—Well, I didn't get home until after daylight, and I was just undressing when my wife woke up and said, "Aren't you getting up pretty early?" In order to save an argument I put on my clothes and came down to the office.

The Glory of Winter!

I love the chilly winter sky, The scudding cloudlets sweeping by, I love to hear the singing whine Of winds in tattered winter line, The stinging sleet that bites the face,

The banked gray clouds that swiftly sail On the cutting, cold February gale,

I'll sing of winter to my lyre If I can sit by a glowing fire, My feet unshod, on the extra chair,

With toes untrammelled, wriggling there, With the radio right close by me, A pan of popcorn on my knee,

With a book or a paper, and my pipe— Oh wintertime, that's when you're ripe!

Then there are people who still have strong beliefs.

Shoe dealer—She is a woman who has gone through a great deal for her belief.

Friend—Indeed? What is her belief?

Shoe Dealer—She believes she can wear a No. 5 shoe on a No. 7 foot.

Two freshmen were about to run a race to a certain tree by different routes. Suddenly, Mike slapped Pat on the back and asked how they were to tell who reached the destination first. After a moment's thought Pat answered, "I tell you, Mike, if I get there first I'll make a mark on that tree with this chalk, and if you get there first you can rub it out."

The Hollywood magnate told an assistant that in his opinion a certain writer was the only man for a film they had under consideration. The assistant was tactfully doubtful.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Safari... Romance... Orchids in the African moonlight... The staid-bitsy cute little tigers and rhinos and cobras and tsetse flies... Romance! And when do we eat?

Well, said Osa Johnson, who from now on is my quotable expert on jungle housewifery, the important thing is that we do eat. And American husbands who live too close for comfort to delicatessens and the can-opener may find Mrs. Martin Johnson highly quotable also. Sample monolog for the American husband.

"Good morning, m'dear! You look a sight. Now Mrs. Martin Johnson—d'ye know that even in darkest Africa that little glimmer gal doesn't let herself go the way you're doing, and you not ten blocks from a beauty parlor?"

"Why only today I was reading in the paper where some guy named Coons in Hollywood was talking to her—and gosh, was she smitten? He says the little woman can out-glam most of the movie queens. Cut as a bug—but a lot prettier, he says. He says she looked—seems he had lunch with her at the Town House—as if she'd never been closer to a jungle than Metro's back lot."

"BUT what I was getting to was the way this Osa fixes up a meal. Six months from now she's going off again to take movies in another part of Africa, and she's doing her marketing. You, m'dear, wonder whatinhell we're going to eat tonight but Osa now—why, that little girl does her marketing by the ton."

"She's already started Buys tins of milk, fruit, juices, vegetables, corned beef—ships it to Nairobi, which seems to be the jumping-off place. That's where she picks up her porters—anywhere from 200 to 250 black boys—and you, m'dear, think I get hungry and cranky. Of course, those boys live on game and corn meal mush—that's all they like—but friend Osa has to see they're fed."

"AND she makes a real home there, off in the wilds where gasoline is 75 cents a gallon and you can't telephone when you've forgotten the peas. Speaking of peas—that girl takes along seeds and grows her own fresh vegetables when she's in one spot a few weeks. Radishes in 12 days!"

"But you know what? Coons says this Osa is the first African explorer he ever met who didn't spring that line about the jungle being safer than a city street... Bet she feels that way, just the same... In the past 25 years she's spent only three in what we laughingly call civilization... M'dear! What are you DOING with that axe? Why, darling, what've I SAID?"

Dry-cleaning with gasoline even outdoors with no flame nearby, may be unsafe. The friction caused by rubbing clothes in gasoline or naphtha may provide the static spark that will ignite the vapors.

Flashes of Life
Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Feminine First

New Bern, N. C.—They were basketball players—but they were girls, too.

When, during a close game, a mouse scurried across the floor, both teams fled shrieking from the court.

O Pioneers!

Baltimore—A 23-day, 7,200-mile trip from Baltimore to Mexico and back has convinced 12 young men here that they can travel about as cheaply as they can stay at home.

Cat Trouble

Albuquerque, N. M.—Dogcatcher Willie Jones was called to catch a cat under a house. This was his report:

"When I got there I counted 52 cats in the backyard and under the house. I gave up, because I didn't know which cat they wanted caught."

Leg's Out, He's In

Chicago—Mrs. Raymond Porter complained to Judge Thomas Green that her husband would throw part of her out the window when he came home intoxicated.

Yes, that was true, she told the court, he would unstrap her wooden leg and toss it out.

Porter was tossed into jail to work out a $50 fine.

Business Men
Discuss Campaign

Plans for a Boost Central Broadway Campaign were discussed in detail at the regular monthly meeting of the Central Business Men's Association held Tuesday evening at the Y. M. C. A.

H. G. Rafalowsky, chairman of the special events committee, reported a plan which his committee had worked out for a grand merchandising campaign to be held, with the merchants of Central Broadway participating.

After a lengthy discussion the association voted to adopt the committee report to sponsor the campaign. Details of the campaign will be announced.

What Legislature
Is Doing Today

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 8 (AP)—Today in New York's legislature. Both senate and assembly convene at 11 a. m. to act separately on minor legislation.

A joint session of both houses will be held at 12 noon to elect a successor to William Leland Thompson, Troy, as a member of the State Board of Regents.

Judicial committees of both houses to hold a public hearing at 1 p. m. on Governor Lehman's requests for greater authority to deal with official corruption.

Digs Up Skeleton

Salamanca, (AP)—Spencer Nepph, a 24-year-old Indian on the Cattaraugus reservation, abruptly terminated his activity of digging out a skunk when he turned up a skeleton. Coroner George A. Middleton, who said the skeleton apparently was that of an adolescent, ordered the bones taken to Little Valley, Cattaraugus county seat.

He expressed the opinion they were the result of a legitimate Indian burial on the reservation, perhaps 20 years ago, but ordered a check of missing persons as a precaution.

AGED RESIDENT FLEES OHIO FLOOD IN BOAT

While upstream the Ohio river receded and flood refugees were returning to their homes, this aged resident of the eastern part of Cincinnati loaded household belongings into a boat and fled the menace of rising water. In some sections of the city WPA trucks were used to remove families from the Ohio's path.

Man-Made Lake Still Growing

Reservoir at Boulder Dam Is Largest Artificial Body Of Water in World.

WASHINGTON.—Water has been pouring into Lake Mead, world's largest man-made lake, for almost four years, but it isn't full yet. The huge reservoir began to form when Boulder dam shut off its main outlet gates on February 1, 1933, and checked the Colorado river near Boulder City, Nevada.

"At present Lake Mead could flood the state of Connecticut 10 feet deep," says the National Geographic society. "From the dam, backwater extends to the Grand canyon more than 100 miles away. Never wider than 8 miles, the lake is deeper than Lake Erie.

Offers Potential Power, Pleasure.
"When Lake Mead is full, it will hold 12 times as much water as the Aswan reservoir on the Nile in Egypt, nearest rival in size at present. Its eventual shoreline would reach from Washington, D. C., to New York city and back, or from Cleveland to St. Louis. Maximum depth at the dam will be 582 feet. The world's record dive in a diving suit would have to be bettered by some 82 feet in order for a diver to touch bottom there.

Used for Irrigation.
"Silt will involve merely a reduction in dead storage of water. Less than one-tenth of the maximum reservoir capacity, say engineers who have studied the problem, will be lost by silt in the first 50 years.

"Most of the reservoir's storage capacity will be held for irrigation and hydro-electric power. Water will be used for irrigation after it has passed through the power turbines. About 1,900,000 acres of irrigable land lie below the dam in the United States. Tunnels will conduct flows to the power plant that will generate 1,335,000 horsepower—more than any other hydro-electric plant has ever developed. Flood control, municipal water supplies, and improved navigation on the Colorado river are additional results.

"Lake Mead is also an all-year-round recreational center in a region of multi-colored mountains and ark canyons. Regularly scheduled motorboat trips from Boulder dam provide a water-level introduction to the canyon.

"Although more popular in winter than in summer, which is hot and dry, Lake Mead always affords an interesting stopping-off place for travelers. It is within a day's drive from southern California, and Phoenix, Salt Lake City, Reno, and other southwestern centers of population are within a convenient radius.

The lake is named for the late Dr. Elwood Mead, commissioner of reclamation during the period of Boulder dam's construction.

Opens Inaccessible Areas.
"With the rising of Lake Mead, water has found its way into many deep, dry canyons. Now boats can explore regions once virtually inaccessible. Cliff dwellings and caves, previously unknown, have revealed evidences of prehistoric life.

"Some cliff dwellings 60 miles from Boulder dam are high enough above Lake Mead to escape inundation, and yet not too high for exploration. There traces of ground sloths and bones of prehistoric man have been found. In other caves scientists have discovered a desiccated ant and the jaw of a dog-sized animal with traces of skin, hair, tongue, and lips. Not far from the cave a camel's skeleton was uncovered, and elsewhere bones believed to belong to the Saber-Toothed Tiger were found. Still unidentified are numerous bones of rat-sized mammals.

Lost City, Nev., deserted more than a thousand years ago, has been partially flooded by Lake Mead. Probably about 800 A. D. this community was an active center of Indian life.

A museum at Overton, Nev., preserves everything that could be saved from nearby Lost City, while a similar establishment at Boulder grows richer with archeological finds from newly-explored caves and ruins. National park representatives at Boulder City and guides shed by the state at Overton lead the treasures to visitors.

Single-Pupil Schools Expensive for Wyoming.
LAME, WYO.—Wyoming has the most expensive grade schools in the West, a rural education in the Cow state showed.

Nelson, superintendent of there, said the 16 high-priced attend "one pupil" schools cost rural sections.

As much as for a teacher's fuel and supplies to educate a pupil as it would for 20 pupils, Miss Nelson said. "As a very one of these 16 isolated schools costs the state $700 per year."

Tractors Take Hay Ride
Perry, N. Y. (AP)—The motor age has taken another hurdle, eliminating hapless Dobbins even from the old-fashioned sleighride. A group of young people from the Perry Center Congregational Church reported they covered more territory in one hour than a horse could cover in a night when they attached rubber-tired tractors to straw-filled sleighs for a recent party.

Snyder Recovers From Gas Effects

Frank F. Snyder, of 26 Shufeldt street, employed as freight handler on the West Shore Railroad, is slowly recovering from the effects of carbon monoxide fumes and burns sustained Sunday, January 29, when he entered a refrigerator car on a siding in the north yard of the railroad.

Mr. Snyder had gone to the car to tend the charcoal stove which was used to keep the car heated. Local Freight Agent J. J. Simpson, who accompanied Snyder to the car and saw him overcome by the fumes, attempted to aid him but was forced to call for assistance and Harry Bruck of Murray street and Charles Davis of Roosevelt avenue, two railroad men, ran to Simpson's assistance in removing Snyder from the car.

At the Kingston Hospital Mr. Snyder was found not only suffering from the fumes of the gas but also badly burned about the body. Mr. Snyder is still under a physician's care who calls several times a week to dress the burns. In discussing his narrow escape Mr. Snyder said he could not find words to express his grateful thanks to his fellow railroad employees, the members of the fire and police departments and the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation emergency crew.

Police to Take Exam
It is expected that some 23 members of the Kingston police department will take the examination for radio telephone operator of the third class, which will be held at the city hall on Friday, February 17, under the supervision of H. L. Van Deusen, secretary of the Municipal Civil Service Commission. The examination is prepared by the Federal Communications Commission. At present there are about a dozen men in the department, including the chief and the two lieutenants who have qualified in previous examinations for radio telephone operators.

Police School Thursday
Crime prevention will be the subject discussed at the second session of the annual police school at the city hall on Thursday afternoon. Lieutenant Charles Phinney will preside as instructor of the session. The annual school is holding weekly meetings for a period of six weeks, discussing and studying various phases of police work.

Negroes Are Held In Stabbing Affray

As a result of a stabbing affray at East Kingston about 9:30 o'clock Tuesday evening, three negro residents of the village are in the Ulster county jail, including the man who was stabbed. All three are being held for hearing before Justice Acker.

It is alleged that Pat Luck, 32, was stabbed in the chest during a three-cornered fight. Deputy Sheriff McCullough and Young made an investigation of the affair and as a result all three persons involved were arrested. Luck's injury was not serious and did not require hospitalization.

Clara Marshall, 36, had the officers arrest John Eldridge, 53, charging him with assault, third degree. In turn Eldridge asked the officers to arrest Clara on a similar charge. Luck was held on a disorderly conduct charge.

On being booked at the county jail Eldridge admitted two prior convictions and Clara Marshall admitted three convictions.

MODES of the MOMENT

A crochet addict's assertion that she could copy any woven fabric with her hook inspired this new 1939 frock for southern winters and northern springs. Mercerized cotton is used for the blue skirt and the blue and white striped top bound with braid.

Y.M.C.A. to Stress 'American Way'

Warning that internal chaos and civic indifference are greater menaces to American democracy than attacks from other countries, the National Board of the Young Men's Christian Association has adopted and is releasing today a resolution for the guidance of 1,154 Y. M. C. A.'s in the United States in the present social and political crisis.

A resolution on this was received by General Secretary Robert L. Sisson from E. R. Leibert, public relations secretary, 347 Madison avenue, New York city, today.

"Among youth are many," the statement noted, "who should be aided in accepting an enthusiasm for true Americanism."

The resolution in part states: "The preservation and enhancement of democracy should be of primary concern to all citizens in the present hour. Challenges which cannot be ignored have arisen in recent years to shock all of us out of complacent acceptance of the heritage won with such difficulty by our forefathers. The more audacious and articulate attacks come from Fascism, Communism, and National Socialism; those which are more subtle and possibly more dangerous arise out of internal troubles, civic indifference, and confusion over our unsolved economic and social problems. To preserve democracy in America we must make it work; and in doing the dangers of both Fascism and Communism can best be avoided."

Medical Society Holds Meeting

The winter meeting of the Medical Society of the County of Ulster was held Tuesday night at the Governor Clinton Hotel with a large attendance of physicians and surgeons present.

Dr. Harold L. Rakov, president of the society, who was the main speaker, expressed great satisfaction at the large turnout despite the poor traveling conditions on the icy roads.

The scientific session was presided over by Dr. Eugene F. Galvin of Rosendale, and the speaker was Dr. Rakov, whose topic was "Classification of Morbid Conditions Giving Rise to Paroxysmal Cardiac Pain; Diagnosis and Therapy."

The talk was concerned with a scientific investigation and treatment of those conditions which might produce pain over the heart area and treatment of same. Committees appointed for 1939 are as follows:

Legislation—Dr. Fred Snyder, Dr. L. Hugel and Dr. Fred Holcomb.
Public health and public relations—Dr. H. K. Leiber, Dr. J. Olivet and Dr. E. M. Parsons.
Milk—Dr. H. L. Bibby, Dr. R. A. McGaig, Dr. V. B. DeWitt, Dr. Carl Neekins and Dr. John B. Krom.
Cancer—Dr. J. S. Taylor, Dr. F. A. Johnston and Dr. W. S. Bush.
Economics—Dr. E. T. Fassett, Dr. J. J. Jacobson and Dr. E. S. Goodyear.
Workmen's compensation—Dr. D. S. Meyers, Dr. S. Ritchie and Dr. C. L. Gannon.

Pardoned Convict Gets Support of Townsfolk

Glendale, Calif., Feb. 8 (AP)—A pardoned convict kept his job as chief of police of Glendale today while townsfolk, undismayed by the exposure of his past, voted confidence in him anew.

With no apologies, Vernon B. Browne admitted he had served 11 months in prison in 1925 for embezzlement and was pardoned.

When the city council learned of the events leading to his conviction, it voted praise of his service.

And from the Ministerial Association, representing 35 churches, came a resolution approving Browne, deacon of the First Baptist Church, as "a Christian gentleman."

Not even Browne's three children knew of the shadow of his past until an anonymous tipster slipped under the door of a newspaper office an old prison picture of him.

League Would Ban Use of State Property

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 8 (AP)—The New York League for the Separation of Church and State sought today a ban on use of state property for meetings held "under exclusive control of a religious sect."

Joseph Wheelers, league attorney, obtained from Supreme Court Justice Sydney F. Foster yesterday an order, returnable Friday, forcing the State education Department and Siena College to show cause why the Rev. Bernard H. Hubbard, S. J., should not be refused use of chancellor's hall for an address.

At the same time, Wheelers, a New York city attorney, asked a permanent injunction against the state to prohibit it "from granting permits allowing any denominational religious organization to hold a meeting, entertainment or occasion, under exclusive control of a religious sect," in violation of the state constitution.

Father Hubbard, known as the "Glacier Priest," was scheduled to give an address in chancellor's hall in the state education building here February 14 under the auspices of Siena College of nearby Loudonville. The college is conducted by the Friars minor Order of Franciscans.

Amalgamated Send Telegram to Wicks

574 Broadway, Kingston, N. Y., February 7, 1939
Editor, The Freeman:

For your information, the following telegram was today sent to Senator Wicks relative to the "Wicks Bill."

"Executive Board, Local No. 186, Amalgamated Clothing Workers of Kingston, New York, went on record February 6th condemning Wicks Bill putting Transport Workers on Civil Service. We urge that you reconsider this measure."

JAMES GEARY, President Local No. 186.

Members of this local union feel that this bill, if passed, will disrupt the Transport Workers Union, and the jobs of the 20,000 subway and elevated workers placed in the hands of politicians. This local organization feels that all labor should do everything possible to aid in the defeat of this "Wicks Bill."

ELIZABETH SNYDER, Secy.—Local No. 186.

Home for Aged Receives Bequest

A bequest made under the will of the late Emma W. Schoonmaker to the Home for the Aged in Ulster County has been received by the trustees of the Home.

About two years ago Mrs. Schoonmaker, as published at that time, named the Home a beneficiary under her will to the amount of $175,000.

This bequest has been given to the Home by Jacob H. Schoonmaker of New York and is now in the hands of the trustees, who will use the income from the trust fund for maintenance of the Home. Because of a decrease in value of certain holdings the actual amount received was $127,500.

The board at its annual meeting, held just after receipt of the bequest, took official action in expressing its appreciation and thanks to Mr. Schoonmaker for the bequest on the part of his wife, the late Emma W. Schoonmaker.

Home Service Let Etiquette Smooth Your Social Path

Meet Situations Gracefully
Charming Faith, off to a dance with the young Mannerly heir! Her parents are so proud of her poise, her well-bred air — and she's proud of her parents too.

When Faith presented young Mannerly, her mother as hostess rose to greet him, though of course in someone else's home she wouldn't rise on meeting a man. Faith's father cordially rises and shakes hands — as correct for men when introduced.

At the dance, Faith shows she's learned the little rules that please an escort. "I enjoyed it too," she says when Jimmy thanks her for a dance. She lets her partner gallantly take the blame if they make a misstep, doesn't insist on apologizing herself.

It she's standing with a date and one of the stags asks her to dance, she smilingly says, "May I" to her date if the stag forgets to ask him. No wonder Faith's popular — keeps her beaux!

Easy to shine in any situation when you know what's done by people in the know. Our 22-page booklet gives etiquette pointers for the whole family. Rules for theaters, house parties, dances, travel. How to be a gracious hostess or guest.

Send 10c in coin for your copy of ETIQUETTE: THE CORRECT THING TO DO TO THE KINGSTON Daily Freeman, Home Service, 635 Sixth Ave., New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Ladies' Night Held

The annual "ladies' night" of the Men's Club of the Fair Street Church was held Tuesday evening at the church parlors. Approximately 60 were in attendance when President Harry Sweeney welcomed the members and their guests. During the evening games and contests were played and refreshments were served under the direction of George Males and George Dinje.

Ski Race and Winter Swim At Rosendale on Saturday

An 18-kilometer cross country ski race sponsored by the Telamark Ski Club of Rosendale and the feature, frigid swim of the season by the Williams Lake Polar Bears, both to take place Saturday afternoon, will signal the beginning of one of the most active week-ends of the winter in Rosendale.

The cross country race will take place on the Auchmoedy Ski Slopes at 1 p. m. The Polar Bears and Snow Birds will dip into the Williams Lake ice pool at 3 p. m.

The Telamark Ski Club expects to entertain about 30 fast and hardy cross country racers at the competition on the Auchmoedy slopes which are just one and one-half miles west of Rosendale village, near the intersection of the Cottekill road. The entire race will be run on a three-mile course skirting the edges of the slopes, so that spectators can view almost the entire race from the crown of the hill. The course is being laid out in this manner especially for the benefit of spectators, who, viewing the ordinary downhill or cross country race, see only its finish, the rest of the race being held in the woods.

The Williams Lake Polar Bears will gather their largest aggregation of the season Saturday afternoon. About 25 hardies will take the icy dip which will be filmed by newsreel cameramen. Last year the newsreel of the Rosendale swimmers was shown all over the United States and in many foreign countries.

Fish and Game Meeting Postponed, Arranging for Movie Machine

Due to the inability of the speaker to be present at the time for the regular meeting of the Ulster County Fish and Game Protective Association, which was to have been held on Thursday evening, the meeting has been postponed until a later date.

Nelson W. Snyder, president of the association, said today that a number of the members have expressed a desire for a change in meeting places and that he expected shortly to select one.

For some time the association has been in need of a suitable projector, said Mr. Snyder, for the purpose of showing motion pictures. He said that the board of directors has had a proposition made and it is possible that the use of a suitable projector will be available for the next meeting.

The officers of the association urgently request that any one knowing of the location of any coveys of quail that they notify the association, the state conservation office here, or any of the sporting goods dealers in the city as soon as possible in order that the quail may be watched and cared for in order to protect them from starvation.

The association has a supply of grain on hand and will furnish it to anyone who knows of the whereabouts of quail and will feed them.

Mr. Snyder said that investigation so far has failed to reveal any imminent need for establishing "bread lines" for pheasants, but the association would appreciate being informed regarding the congregating of any large number of these birds in order that they may have sufficient food.

"Because pheasants come out into the open near farm buildings or other openings," said Mr. Snyder, "does not necessarily mean that they are starving. They are naturally a lazy bird and are inclined to get their food with the least possible effort."

Mr. Snyder said that feeding of pheasants is not urged or approved by the association unless conditions show that the birds require care, as birds congregated together in large numbers offer a hazard to each other if there should be a diseased bird in the flock.

Cleaners, Forsts and Hercules Are City League Winners

Columbia Plays Dartmouth Five

New York, Feb. 8 (AP)—Columbia's basketball team, inactive for more than two weeks, takes up the chase after Dartmouth's Eastern Intercollegiate League leaders tonight.

The last time out, the Lions beat Cornell for their second victory in three league starts and took over second place in the standings. Tonight they resume competition against the last-place Yale team at New Haven.

General competition in the league won't be resumed until Saturday, but meanwhile Harvard had a tune-up last night by trimming Northeastern 49-44 and Cornell takes on its upstate rival, Syracuse, tonight. Cornell likely will take a licking there. Princeton runs into similar danger against Rutgers.

In a similar situation to Columbia's Pittsburgh, third in the Eastern Intercollegiate Conference, plays Penn State at Pittsburgh tonight. The Panthers also have won two games and lost one, but they're third behind Carnegie Tech and Georgetown, with four and three victories, respectively, to one loss. Both teams have had in-and-out seasons so far, but Pitt crashed into the title picture last Saturday by trimming Carnegie 51-43.

Contracts Aren't Worrying Wrigley

Chicago, Feb. 8 (AP)—Phil K. Wrigley, taking note of the salary-wrangling tactics of his Chicago Cubs, is holding out on the dissatisfied members of last season's National League title team.

Disgruntled ball players are something less than a rarity at this time of the year. But a club owner who joins the recalcitrant brigade is something new.

Cub contracts were mailed out several weeks ago. Eighteen have been returned signed. Eleven players have returned their papers unsigned, each explaining why owner Wrigley should raise the ante. One employee, Hank Leiber, outfielder obtained in a trade with the New York Giants, hasn't been heard from at all.

But the situation apparently isn't worrying Wrigley. Most of the unsigned contracts were returned more than a week ago, but nothing has been done about them.

Falcero Shoots 210 At Central Alleys

In his special appearance at Central Recreation Bowling Alleys Tuesday Night, Joe Falcero, undefeated match game champion, put on a six-game exhibition against local experts and turned in an average of 210.

After starting poorly, Falcero rallied to put on a brilliant show, and concluded his program with a series of trick shots.

Falcero invited a lady from the audience to try one of his tricks—knocking down 18 pins with one ball. It worked the first time. The champion talked on fundamentals of bowling—footwork, rhythm, follow through, spare shooting and spot bowling.

He'll be at the alleys again tonight for instructions and to compete against Johnny Ferraro at 10:30 in a three-game match.

Ray Schneider's Uptown Merchants, playing with only four men, lost a hard-fought attempt to close up on the leaders of the American Division of the City Basketball League last night when they were defeated 33-31 by the Boston Cleaners at the Myron J. Michael School.

Forst Packers added another game to their win column when they defeated Fullers 25-18, and the Knights of Columbus, playing with a four-man team made easy pickings for the Hercules Powdermen who piled up a 53-23 score.

The Boston Cleaners held only a slight edge on the Merchants throughout their entire game, and only the accurate shooting and only the accurate shooting kept them in the lead.

The game was marked by temper flare-ups which stopped the play on several occasions. O'Hara was high for the Cleaners with 17 points and Halstein led the Merchants with 16.

The scores: Hercules (55), C. Boek, 1, 19; H. Halstein, 8; Krum, 1, 14; Huey Clark, 6; Belcher, 8; K. O. K. (23).
Forsts (29), Wood, 4; Bradner, 1; Terpening, 4; Bradford, 12; Menzel, 6; 7. Fullers (18), R. Fatum, 1; 6; S. Meyers, 4; Marks, 1; 0; F. Fatum, 2; Styles, 2; 2; Newell, 1; 2; Zoller, 2. Score at end of first half: Forsts 15, Fullers 4. Fouls committed: Forsts 2, Fullers 6. Referee: Van Etten.

Boston Cleaners (33), Markle, 1; 8; Geisler, 1; 0; B. Bartoff, 5; Silverberg, 3; O'Hara, 1; 17; Every, 3; 0. Uptown Merchants (31), Halstein, 1; 16; Garland, 4; Schneider, 1; 4; Bartoff, 3. Toboggan Entries End Saturday—Up to J. H. L. to Chase Melio

Entries for the toboggan race at Woodstock Sunday must be in by Saturday. . . . Notifications should be mailed to the Woodstock Winter Sports Association. . . . The race is the first since 1936, when Don Jackson and his Woodstockers won on the 2,600-foot slide. . . . In the A. B. C. international tournament an intricate electrical signal system (the only one of its kind) keeps the official scores. . . . More than 10,000 connections and 23 miles of wiring were required for the Chicago journey in 1935, in addition to 1152 switches and 675 lamps. . . . A North Worth street blocked the sidewalk traffic by filling a show window with 20 of Davey O'Brien's football trophies. . . . It cost Jim Frleigh 25 cents to have Chapple Cooper released from the Leonard's to play with the Kinney club in the City Basketball League. . . . Noting that hen fruit is quoted at that price a dozen, Jim must think Chapple's a good egg. . . . Jimmy Grippo wants John Henry Lewis to chase him and Melio Bettina, now that his Beacon Bomber is

Grid Conference

Chicago, Feb. 8 (AP)—Football—professional variety—moves back into the sports spotlight tomorrow when National League officials and coaches convene to adopt a schedule, study rules changes and dicker for each other's playing talent. No major alterations in the playing code are anticipated.

White Plains, N. Y.—Vic Troist, 137½, Mount Vernon, N. Y., outpointed Johnny Rinaldi, 141, New York, (8).

That was a swell crowd that greeted Joe Falcero at Central Recreation Alleys last night. . . . The champ got off to a poor start, but finished up brilliantly. . . . His talk and demonstrations were very much enjoyed. . . . Tonight he goes on again. . . . 10:30 he meets Johnny Ferraro, one of the pros of the alleys. . . . Barney Sedran is talking about being afraid of an upset tonight. . . . What if the Visitations did click and knock off the Colonials. . . . Wouldn't the fans be surprised. . . . Well, it might happen. . . . Look what the Troy Haymakers did to the Sphas. . . . Joe Bliss had another easy one last night, but can help it if Frankie Yusko decided to let him win by a forfeit. . . . We're waiting to see somebody good fight Hurd Alexander. . . . Last night we heard that it took him only seven rounds to win six fights. . . . What a right that boy's got. . . . Buddy Clayton, manager of Sammy Bruce, once a prominent pro scrapper is handling Alexander.

Samoyede Dog Gets Name

From Mongolian Hunters

The Samoyede dog takes its name from the ancient Mongolian hunters and fishermen of northeastern Siberia. The Samoyede people found this dog was an excellent assistant in hauling sleds, in hunting and in herding reindeer. The dog was picked to pull sleds because less food was required for its maintenance than for the reindeer, the traditional motive power for Arctic trucking.

The Samoyede people, from the region between the Ob and Yenisei rivers on the shores of the Arctic ocean, trained their rugged dogs to herd reindeer, which are of vital importance to both food and clothing. The dogs kept the reindeer on the range desired and guarded them from marauding animals and sounded an alarm at the approach of hostile or strange humans.

It might be added that the faithful dog frequently met the same fate as the reindeer, being transformed into food and clothing, as the chow dog is in China.

To perform the duties required of it in rigorous climate, states an authority in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, the Samoyede must be a hardy, sturdy dog with a coat that enables him to withstand the most severe weather. As might be expected he is related in varying degrees to the chow, Alaskan malamute, Norwegian elkhound, Siberian huskie, Eskimo dog and several other breeds, including, odd as it may seem, the Pomeranian.

The breed made its appearance in England long toward the end of the last century. It was brought to the United States soon afterward. Although he is used as a working dog in his native land, the Samoyede is not used seriously in a working capacity in this country.

Rescue Firemen Hold Banquet

Work of the volunteer firemen was described as an important factor in community safety by both Mayor Conrad J. Heiseleman and Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy at the 51st annual banquet of the Firemen's Association of the City of Kingston, held last night at the Cat and the Fiddle restaurant.

"I believe the City of Kingston has one of the best fire departments in the state and one of the best chiefs in the world," declared the mayor. He then asked for continued cooperation between the volunteers and the paid department.

The mayor also reminded his listeners of the praiseworthy work done by local firemen at the fire in the Moline plant in Poughkeepsie. He had heard he said, that men of the Rescue company had also volunteered their services, and he expressed hope that this spirit would continue locally.

Marlborough Woman Inherits

New York, Feb. 7. (Special)

Nellie Masselle of Marlborough is listed as a legatee in the will of her sister, the late Celia Cantor of Brooklyn, filed for probate today in Brooklyn surrogate's court. She is left jewelry and other personal effects of undetermined value. The testatrix died January 28, leaving an estate of $2,000 real and $10,000 personal property. The bulk goes to a sister, Frances Deutsch, of Philadelphia. A niece, Roslyn Shulman, of Poughkeepsie, is a recipient of jewelry.

WPA Art Will Be Used to Chase Gloom From Gotham Subways

New York, Feb. 8. (AP)—The city council has voted to decorate New York's "gloomy and depressing" subways with murals and sculptures by WPA artists.

The measure was approved yesterday amid protests, not all facetious, over the probable quality of the art and its possible effect on passengers.

"I saw some pictures done by WPA artists," said John H. Delaney, chairman of the Board of Transportation, "and their idea of art wasn't anything that I'd care to put in a subway."

Some councilmen feared the subway walls would become "billboards of political propaganda" or a fresh avenue of expression for small boys with a penchant for inscribing comic mustaches on car cards.

"We mustn't overlook a very real danger to thousands of our citizens in this bill," warned Councilman James A. Burke. "I refer to those who have taken a few snifters."

"Now, I've seen some of this modernistic art, and if one of those citizens who already may be seeing pink elephants goes into the subway, he's likely to become confused, with disastrous results."

"Big Harry" Schoenhaus (above) confessed former bookkeeper for the Dutch Schultz policy racket, acknowledged under cross-examination in the second conspiracy trial of Tammany Leader James J. Hines in New York that he turned state's evidence to "save his own skin."

Moore Has New Killing Version

Troy, N. Y., Feb. 8. (AP)—Chief Inspector Albert B. Moore of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation said today he had given Rensselaer County District Attorney Charles J. Ranney an affidavit giving a new version of the killing of Jules Martin in March, 1935.

Moore refused to divulge the contents of the affidavit he said had been taken from Hyman Berger, alias Hymie the Painter, of Brooklyn, now a prisoner in the Atlanta, Ga., federal prison on an automobile theft charge.

The inspector said, however, Berger's story differed from that told by J. Richard (Dixie) Davis, former attorney for the late Arthur (Dutch Schultz) Fleishman, Davis testified at the first trial of Tammany Leader James J. Hines he saw Schultz kill Martin in a Cohoes hotel.

Moore said members of his force acted on an "inside tip," questioned Berger in Atlanta and turned the affidavit they received over to Major John A. Warner, state police superintendent.
